

Video Transcript

HII Scholarship Fund: Early Childhood Education

Voice of Mike Petters:

For whatever reason, this brain that we have builds itself. And it really builds itself mostly from the time you're born to the time that you're about five years old or so.

So it's really important that while your brain is building itself, that it be stimulated in some very, very positive and creative and innovative ways.

Creating access for folks who may not have otherwise had that access to lifelong learning habits, will serve them well. And the more of those folks that are out there, the better opportunity we have for some of them to be able to come and help our company.

We won't achieve our potential as a society unless our people are achieving their own potentials. I feel like it's really important that we provide that opportunity for the kids of the next generation.